ORGANISATIONAL CHART

PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES OF THE JOB

The Distance Learning Tutor is responsible for front line support of their students, working as a teaching professional, providing curricular and pastoral support consistently and reliably across their caseload. This requires highly developed communication and customer care skills.

Tutors work as part of a team and interact regularly with both other tutors and colleagues with different roles within the organisation. Maintaining a sufficient understanding of supporting and management systems within the organisation, and their relationship to the tutor's role, is vital in ensuring a seamless and professional service.

Tutors are required to have an excellent knowledge and understanding of the subjects they teach and be able to mark and grade students' work effectively against specified criteria. They also need to be able to provide advice and support to students with respect to Higher Education applications and provide references.

Tutors are responsible for keeping their specialist subject knowledge up to date and to maintain a detailed understanding of course structure, study pathways and curriculum developments. They also need to use, update and contribute to internal verification and quality assurance systems, with respect to their areas of work, and be prepared to undertake professional training and development activities as required.

In order to manage the student caseload, the tutor must keep accurate and consistent records either held personally, on paper or electronically, or by using online systems provided or required by the employer, providing this information for the appropriate designated person.

S/he must also maintain confidentiality and security with respect to the information held. Tutors provide cover for other colleagues during periods of leave and may also be offered additional negotiated work, particularly relating to their individual areas of subject or skills specialisms.

CONTROL OF RESOURCES

Personnel: none

Financial:

- No direct control over financial resources but may be required to communicate financial information about student payments to the students and/or issue invoices/requests for payments.

Equipment/Materials:

- Provide, maintain and update your own Information Technology (IT) hardware & software at home, as required, to fulfil the requirements of the post, delivering high quality reliable services to students and other customers.
- With assistance as required from Technical Support, maintain high levels of security on your IT systems through use of professionally recognised virus scanning software which is able to scan emails, files and downloads for viruses, malicious software or malware. Ensure that any such attacks are managed effectively by the software.

- Ensure that passwords and other sensitive information, such as personal information about students or other customers are stored securely. In many cases this will involve correct use of DLCentre Ltd. systems and procedures in which case responsibility for security will rest with the organisation.

Intellectual:

- Ensure the protection of DLCentre Ltd intellectual property to which you have access, such as course materials, by ensuring passwords or other access codes are kept secure and not passed on to third parties except where this is a part of any service which they have purchased.
- Course Materials or other intellectual property produced as a part of your employment with DLCentre Ltd are the property of DLCentre Ltd and you must manage their control and distribution accordingly.
